The following interesting mercantile case was terminated recently in the Superior Court of Massachusetts. Horace Billings, of Bridgeton, Me., merchant, entered a suit against Russell & Waters, proprietors of a Mercantile Agency in Boston, for alleged slander in entering upon their books and giving to their subscribers unfavorable information touching the solvency of the plaintiff, laying his damages at $10,000. The trial, says the Transcript, was very thorough, and after the case had beau elaborately argued by Hon. Rufus Choate for plaintiff, and Hon. John H. Cliff rd for defendants, Judge Sprague, in charging the jury, who soon after found a verdict for the lefendants, maintained with great emphasis and clearness, that an agency of this character, having used general care to obtain correct information, and without malice having imparted it to subscribers whose agent it was for a peconiary consideration, in case unfavorable intelligence was imparted, its managers were not to be held responsible; but in case injurious results followed from the disclusure of the information, the parties receiving it, and breaking the confidence imposed by imparting agency, he maintained, was both legitimate and honorable, and to be protected by law. Although the copper mining interest in this country, is, as yet, in its infancy, it has already produced results that give promise of its soon standing among the foremost of our industrial pursuits. Previous to 1840, we were entirely dependent on England for our supply of this metal, while now we are producing about 5,000 tons of it, equal to 1-17th of the amount required to meet the demand of the whole world; the beds of its ore are inexhaustible, and it is of great purity. Eighteen new stamp ing mills were erected last year, and at least fifty more will be added in 1856.

Prunes have been very successfully cultivated in Pennsylvania. Among the economists in Beaver county they have been grafted on plum . Mr. Pfeiffer, of Indiana, raised prune trees in large numbers, and sold them at exorbitant prices, some as high as $5 or $10 per bushel. He had some of the fruit at the Pennsylvania State Agricultural Fair, held at Pittsburg, which sold readily at 50 cents a quart.

The Alton (Ill.) Courier, speculating in regard to the prospect of wheat, says the crop of last year is not all marketed, and that part of it which has left the producers' hands is far from being in the hands of the con-umers. It anticipates a fine crop the coming season, both on account of the increased number of acres sown and the favorable winter for the grain, uninterrupted cold weather and snow being good for the grain. The Chicago Journal says: The snow which has fallen during the past 60 days is equal to five inches of manure. People capable of estimating matters, imagine that the wheat crop of 1856 will be the largest ever harvested in this country. To estimate the value of the snow upon the ground at ten millions dollars, would be a low figure. The Peoria Press says the quantity of grain in store in that city is 400,000 bushels. It adds "The country is still filled with grain, and every day the receipts are increasing. We presume there is not a town in central Illinois, nor between Chicago and St. Louis, that can show as good a record of their winter transactions as Peoria." These speculations and facts have an important bearing upon prices."

A correspondent of the New York Post says that an important service was rendered to the foreign residents of Montevideo during the late revolution, and to the defeated party, after all was over, by Commander W. F. Lynch, of the the U. S. slaop-of-war Germantown. When the fighting commenced, he immediately went ashore with his marines-parties of whom were stationed to protect private families, and the main body so as to prevent the pillage of the Custom House. Immediately upon their defeat, the revolutionists were ordered to leave the country in so many hours. As they passed down the street to the harbor, they were fired on by parties of the incensed and still excited victors, and would have been massacred to a man, if Commander L. had not thrown himself between them and their enemies, and covered their embarcation.

The origin of the name of Canada is curious enough. The Spaniards visited the country previous to the French, and made particular searches for gold and silver, and finding none, they often said among themselves, "Aqui nada, (there is nothing here.) The Indians who watched closely, learned this sentence and its meaning. After the departure of the Spanjards, the French arrived; and the Indians who wanted none of their company, supposed they were also Spaniards come on the same errand, and were anxious to inform them that their labor was lost by tarrying in that country, incessantly repeated the Spanish sentence, 'Aqui nada.' The French, who knew as little of the Spanish language as the Indians, supposed this incessantly recurring sound was the name of the country, and gave it the name of Canada, which it has borne ever since.

We take from the Havana Prensa, of the to assassinate the Archbishop of Cuba, communicated to that paper by a correspondent writing under date of Holquin, Feb. 1st: "With feelings of just indignation, I sit down to communicate to you the following horrid piece of intelligence. Our virtuous Archbishop, the most excellent Senor Don Antonio Claret y Clara, recently arrived at Gibara from Neuvitas, on the steamer Pelayo. He stopped more than two days at Gibara, and then lefe for this city. On the evening after his arrival he preached an eloquent sermon in the parish church, in the course of which he took oocasion to laud the people for their piety and general good conduct. The church was complete

"As the archbishop left the church, the people flocked around him as usual, and among others several pious women, all waiting for an opportunity to kiss the ring on his finger. At this moment a man elbowed his way through the crowd up to the archbishop, expressing by his looks and manner a desire to receive the holy father's benediction. As he was in the act of stooping to kiss the ring, he suddenly drew a clasp-knite, and stabbed the archbishop in the f ce. The venerable prelate fell senseless to the ground. The wretched assassin, not content with this, but blinded by rage, endeavored to strike his victim anew, but at this critical moment a private soldier, belonging to the garrison stationed in the town, threw himself between the two, and succeeded in apprehending the assassin and leading him off to prison. The clasp-knife was afterwards found on the ground, and near it the archbishop's

"The assassin's name is Antonio Torres, a native of the Canary Islands, of low stature and aged about thirty-five years. The wound begins near the upper part of the ear, and stretches obliquely down to the middle of the face. We all trust that the life of the virtuous archbishop may be spared, and that the fervent prayers which are offered up by all for the preservation of his life, will not be without avall. "lon," of the Baltimore Sun, thinks that the efforts made by our principal statesmen in the Senate to sustain an independent course upon the Central American question will amount to nothing. The various interests of the country which deprecate a war with England are too powerful for the Administration, and its views fairly deciding for themselves should be admitted into manuot be sustained. The same writer says: If Lord Palmerston should adopt the suggestion of the London Times, and offer to abandon all her pretensions in Central America, throwing the Balize into the bargain, upon the condition that the United States government shall drive out fillbusters from Nicaragua, our government cannot accept the offer. They cannot undertake to interfere with the affaire of settlers in Nicaragua, either for or against them. The government has fortunately kept itself in a position which will enable it to show that it has discountenanced the illegal expeditions against Nicaragua. MILLARD FILLMORE, FOR VICE PRESIDENT. ANDREW J. DONELSON.

FOR PRESIDENT,

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1856.

OUR PRESIDENTIAL TICKET.

The intensity of our rejoicing at the announcement we make this morning, cannot be put into words. Our frame is thrilled with delight as we write, or rather attempt to do so, for in such a tumult of emotion it is impossible to write. We can only say let every American with loud acclamation, prolong the shout for FILLMORE and DON-ELSON. What a glorious ticket !! What an invincible ticket !!! FILLMORE, the "Model President," the pure, able, conservative FILI MORE, who once commanded the Ship of State when dark and lowering clouds o'erhung her, and angry billows roared around her; who piloted her safe through the storm, and endeared himself by heart-ties strong as "hooks of steel," to every patriot who felt an interest in her welfare. FILLMORE, who, by the blessing of Providence, is destined again to calm the sectional strife, and give peace and prosperity to his country, laboring under mal-administration and the distractions of pestilent demagogues. And what shall we say of Donelson, Tennessee's own Don-ELSON, a worthy scion of "OLD HICKORY?" Honest, clear-sighted and sagacious Don-ELSON, with all the noble and lion-like qualities of his great friend and patron. What more could Tennesseeans want? Suffice it to say, it is the ticket for Tennessee, and we pledge her electoral vote by TEN THOUSAND. Fellow Americans, the mists are dispelied. The doubts are cleared up. The bright bow of promise bespans the political heavens. With such a ticket, if we but do our duty, the day is ours. From now till November's first Tuesday, think of your country. She needs your help Strike early, and never know flagging or tiring, till "Victory sits on your heims."

Will you, as an editor of a Southern journal, take a position against them? Public history informs us that slavery existed before the Constitution, and in my judgment, non exists independent of the Constitution When the people of the confederated States met, by their representatives in convention, to form that Constitution, slavery existed in all but one of the States of the Confederacy. The people, through their representatives, having an existing and acknowledged right to hold slaves, conceded thisthe right to prohibit importation-after the year 1808. They made no cession, ap far as regarded the existence of domestic slavery. Proceedings of the National Council. We copy below from the correspondence of the Baltimore American Democrat, the second day's proceedings of the American National Council. Nothing of interest was done the first day. We have carefully abstained from republishing any of the proceedings of that body until we could obtain a report which we can rely upon for its fairness and authenticity:

This body convened yesterday morning (Feb. 19) at 10 o'clock, at the Sansom Street Hall, pursuant to adjournment of the afternoon previous, Charles D. Freeman, Esq., of this city, Vice President, in the chair. Some time was occupied in calling over the delegates from the several States, and the admission of those to seats where there were no duplicate delegations or contests with regard to credentials. This being accomplished, the question then of action was necessary on the disputed or contested seats, which was represented as being confined to a portion of Pennsylvania. A motion was then made that a committee of one member from the delegation of each State be appointed by the respective State delegations, to inquire and report upon the credentials of members claiming contested seats. Before this question was put to the Convention, one of the delegates from Ohio addressed the Chair, and said that his constituents were in favor of open deliberations, and moved that the courtesies of the Convention be extended o the reporters of the public press, to which an addition was submitted, to afford suitable accommodations for all reporters.

Then a proposition was made, that a stenographer be engaged, who shall be a member of the Order, to report the proceedings under the sance ion of the Convention. Still another proposition was made, that the proceedings should be published by the Secretaries;

the mover suggesting at the same time that the reporters could then report the speeches of mempers-for which the Convention would not, as it ought not be, responsible. propositions, the original resolution having been nearly lost sight of, a motion was made to lay the subject on the table, and it was agreed to. A motion was then made to extend the courtesics of the Convention to Mr. Cross, of Cincinnati, which was laid on the table. The consideration of the motion to appoint a committee on contested seats was resumed, when it was moved to amend, by adding to the Pennsylvania contestants, to report also on the credentials of the delegation from Louisians, which had been laid upon the table at the time that State was called. One of the delegates from Louisiana asked that immediate action should be taken in reference to the admission of the delegates from that State, when a roposition was made that the delegates from the State of Louisiana be admitted to seats in the Convention upon their credentials.

This motion produced considerable discussion. Dijection was made on the ground that the Coun cils of the State of Louisiana were not recognized by the National Council, and that, not conforming in its principles and practice to the national platorm, it was not a member of the national body, Various views were expressed by different gentlemen, favorable and adverse to the proposition. A motion was then made that the gentlemen from Louisiana be heard by the Convention, and after some little debate, was agreed to. Mr. Eustis, one of the delegates, then addressed the Convention. He said the State and subordinate | slaves without written permit to steamboats,] havorganizations of Louisiana were simply and purely Native American, and that, while they repudiated the eighth section of the Philadelphia platform, they adhered mainly in every other particular to the principles of the great American party, denying and protesting against any allegiance to any temporal power, except under the Constitutions of the States and the United States. He read the declaration of the State Council of Louisiana, repudiating the 8th section, which was listened to with attention. The speaker desired to put himself, his colleagues and his constituents, in a proper position. He declared that he could not, and would not, give in his adhesion to the National Council, if the 8th section was retained; but was nevertheless a Native American, and would hold to the principle that none but "native-born American ritizens should rule America." This speaker was followed by another of the delegation who earnestly spoke upon the subject mater before the Convention. With his colleague he wanted to be understood, and to understand, so that the question might be settled without prejudice or partiality, and that he and his colleagues might be allowed to take their seats under a proper recognition of their views and principles, or retire from the body altogether. He read from the ritual of the subordinate organizations of the State of Louisiana, and showed that, while it admitted those to membership who professed the Roman Catholic religion, it required of them the denial of allegiance to any temporal authority not cognizable in the State and United States Constitutions, and from each a solemn pledge, that not under any circumstances would they divulge the secrets of the order speeches of these gentlemen, the utmost attention was paid to them, and occasionally a manifestation were favorably disposed to their admission, as pro-Finally, the previous question was called and sustained, and being taken, on a call of the yeas and nave, it was carried by a vote of 66 to 50. The ruling of the chair was to the effect that by the adoption of the motion to admit the delegation upon their credentials, the whole matter had been determined, by the vote just given. A number of motions were then made, one or two of which were for the Louisiana delegates to be qualified and take their seats; another to appoint a multtee to inquire and report upon the contested seats of a portion of the Pennsylvania delegation; another, that two members from each party of claimants should have the privilege of addressing the Convention upon the merits of their respective | the House a communication from the President of claims; pending all which motions the Convention adjourned, to meet at 4 o'clock, P. cided, by a vote of 84 to 45, in favor of what is known as the Edie State Council. The Council thority, that Congress has no constitutional right to then adjourned, to meet this morning at 10 o'clock.

S. F. JACOBY & CO., MPORTERS of and dealers in the various Foreign and De-I mestic Marbles, Statuary, &c., have constantly on hand a large and select assortment of MANTLES, TOMBS, MONU-MENTS, TABLE TOPS &c., of every description, not excelled by any in the city, for Feanty symmetry and finish.
CABINET MAKERS, PLUMBERS AND MARBLE CUT-TERS, furnished at the shortest notice, with Marbie of every description and puttern, whether Foreign or Domestic, either fin shed in the Siab or Block, on the most accommodating

We especially invite attent on to our stock on hand IMPORTANT TO THOSE USING STAR CANDLES.

THE attention of the public is invited to the fact, that most of the Star Candles offered for sale are DEFICIENT IN WEIGHF, so that what is said for a pound actually weight but fan tenn or fifteen ounces, and packages marked "40 " fall short two, three and even five pounds per box. This loss does not fall upon the wholesale dealers, who sell packages at Manken Wanger; nor upon he retailers, who sell by Coust, but upon the consumers, who thus pay for about one tenth more than they receive. The subscribers have always made their Can les full sixteen ounces to the pound, and mark packages at their real weight, which may be ascertained by testing them. As their expert ence in the business enables them to offer an article equal in quality to any in the market, they solicit the patronage of chasers who desire to study their own interest, and, at the same time, encourage correct dealing.
